

Clothing Protector

Use a standard size bath towel. Inexpensive ones from WalMart work well.

Turn over 7" to 9" as desired at top for flap to go over shoulder.

Make a pattern for the 7" circle cut-out. (I used an old file folder for its sturdiness.)

Mark the center of the pattern and place in center of towel fold and cut out semicircle. Unfold the flap and cut the short 7" piece to open the circle. Measure binding long enough for this cut flap (2 pieces) and sew onto towel. Then measure the opening plus 24" of binding for neck binding and ties. You can make your own binding or use standard bias binding tape available in all sewing centers. Measure 12" in on binding for first tie and place the raw towel edge inside the binding. Pin in place and then sew. Leave the other 12" binding for second tie on other end of circle.
